{rokbox title=|This house was probably built in the 17th century / Photo Carlos Sueskún.|}images/stories/turistainternacional/Quehacer/informeespecial/hoteles-boutique/casa-cuatro.jpg{/rokbox}

This house was probably built in the 17th century / Photo Carlos Sueskún.

This beautiful and attractive boutique hotel is in the center of the walled city, on Calle del Tejadillo (called in the colonial era, when time was less important, “Calle de Nuestra Señora del Bien Aparecido”).

The house was probably built in the 17th century. Local records show that it kept its Spanish-style facade until the early 20th century, when the owner decided to extend it and give a more Republican look.

The result was an imposing edifice of 1,500 sq.m., and over the years suffered one change after another.

In 2006 the building was bought by a firm of architects with an interesting idea for its restoration. “We recovered a great deal – balconies, heights and so on: we cleaned up the design, eliminated some things that were not original and preserved the Republican-style and its details”, says architect Roberto López-Pareja.

{rokbox title=| The traces of the colonial past stand in contrast to the clean lines and sober ambiance and lighting of modern days / Photo Carlos Sueskún.|}images/stories/turistainternacional/Quehacer/informeespecial/hoteles-boutique/casa-dos.jpg{/rokbox}

The traces of the colonial past stand in contrast to the clean lines and sober ambiance and lighting of modern days / Photo Carlos Sueskún.

The traces of the colonial era were largely preserved, and today we can get quite a good idea of its splendor 150 years ago. The new parts of the design are clean, and with well-conceived, sober lighting – a feature which has earned Wide recognition.

Water and plants are one of the essential themes of the hotel. It adds up to balance, the “feel-good factor” and the warmth that Cartagena projects to the world.

There are 12 impeccably-decorated rooms. Daylight, the serenity and the aromas of Nature are simple – enchanting!

{rokbox title=|The details of Casa Blanca, in the style of the early Republic have been adapted to meet the needs of the day / Photo Carlos Sueskún.|}images/stories/turistainternacional/Quehacer/informeespecial/hoteles-boutique/casa-tres.jpg{/rokbox}

The details of Casa Blanca, in the style of the early Republic have been adapted to meet the needs of the day / Photo Carlos Sueskún.

Casa Blanca, in the Republican style, has details that easily adapt to the needs of today. It’s magic – guests can travel back in time to appreciate the history of Cartagena, in subtle and different ways.

“We want our guests to love Cartagena, meet new and exciting experiences and look at the detail, feeling free, feeling at home”, says Rocío Méndez-Pizarro, Manager of Casa Blanca B&B.

Discover a subtle look at the past in Casa Blanca B&B!

http://www.casablancabyb.com/