Colombian golfer Camilo Villegas

Camilo Villegas is one of Colombia's most noted golfers. He began to play golf as a child, and has now won the South American championship twice. The Colombian Federation elected him as the golfer of the nineties.

Later, he participated in university golf tournaments in the United States and was a member of the NCCA's winning team, representing the University of Florida, where he studied Business Administration.

In 2004, he became a professional and, at present is participating in the PGA tour.

Camilo has made himself known in the professional circuit by his particular style of facing the green and his spider poses, which earned him the nickname "spider man". With his pink pants and yellow shirts, he is a also fashion milestone in the PGA, thanks to the sponsorship of Johan Lindeberg, the famous designer who dresses new golf figures.
