The Manizales Theater Festival /Picture: jabulla /

The Manizales Theater Festival is a cultural feast at 2,150 meters above sea level. Close to 50 national and international theater ensembles get together every year to prove that life is a theater show and a theater show is pure life.

The streets of Manizales are the main stage, but the Festival also offers its public spaces for reflection, musical nights, art exhibits, photo exhibits, and meetings to discuss cultural cooperation.

A bit of history

The Manizales Theater Festival celebrated its thirtieth anniversary in 2008. It began in 1968 as a space for providing freedom of expression to Latin American scenic arts.

Avant-garde theater, street theater, space for encounters of lovers of the scenic arts.

Great companies like La Cuadra de Sevilla (Spain), the Deborah Colker Dance Company (Brazil), the Bread and Puppet Theater (United States), and the influential Poor Theater of Jerzy Grotowski have been present at the oldest Latin American theater festival.
