Guaymaral golf course in the north of Bogotá.

The savanna of Bogotá is located in the geographic center of Colombia, along the Eastern Andes Mountain range. It has an average temperature of 13.5°C, fluctuating between -5°C and 26°C.

Bogotá is known as the epicenter of golf in Colombia due to the quality and maintenance of its courses and, above all, for its fresh climate, which gives the sensation of constantly playing with air conditioning, allowing the player to practice golf 365 days a year.

Bogotá is considered the nucleus of the country's golfing activity.

The savanna in this central region of Colombia has 24 of the country's 50 golf courses. Owing to the altitude and the winds, playing golf in the savanna is always a challenge. The variety of designs, unexpected challenges and different styles of the courses make Bogotá's savanna a paradise for ardent golfers.
