Villavicencio is the center of development of the eastern plains.

Villavicencio: Play golf next to a beautiful sunset

Villavicencio is the capital of the department of Meta and is characterized as the most important commercial center of the Eastern Plains. It is situated in the Andes, to the west of the department of Meta. Its climate is warm and humid with temperatures of around 27 °C.

Cattle-ranching, agriculture and mining are the city's economic strengths. The city has developed commercially and become the development hub for all of the Eastern Plains.

The Eastern plains offer golfers a game surrounded by ravishing sunsets and traditions of the plains.

Golf in Villavicencio offers a combination of beautiful sunsets and placid fields. The Eastern Plains let the golf player experience the Eastern Andean Mountains in a dreamy environment full of local tradition.

Enjoy a pleasant game surrounded by beautiful landscapes that involves interesting analysis of the game according to the players' abilities.
